Department of Economic & Community Development	SF - Cost	Up to $180,000	None

Note: SF=Special Fund (Non-appropriated)

Municipal Impact: None

Explanation

The bill results in a one-time cost of up to $180,000, by requiring the Department of Economic and Community Development to develop an Internet website to highlight Connecticut's portion of the Washington-Rochambeau Revolutionary Route National Historic Trail.

Funding from the Community Investment Act (CIA) can be used to finance the website.¹ As of March 30, 2012 there is a $12.3 million balance available through the CIA to fund historic preservation activities.

Additionally, the website may qualify for a federal grant through the National Park Service which matches up to 50% of the cost of an eligible project. Were the project to qualify for the full amount of the grant, the state would receive $90,000 and the cost to the CIA account would consequently decrease to $90,000.

The Out Years

The bill results in a one time cost and as such has no fiscal impact in ¹ The Community Investment Act (PA 05-228) provides increased funding for open space, farmland preservation, historic preservation and affordable housing. The Act applied a $40 additional fee for land records of which $36 is remitted to the state to fund these initiatives (municipalities keep the remaining $4).
